It is a rare but more important autosomal recessive condition caused by abnormality of copper metabolism. Normally dietary copper is absorbed from the stomach and proximal small intestine and is rapidly taken up into the liver where it is stored and incorporated into caeruloplasmin which is secreted in the blood. The accumulation of excessive copper in the body is prevented by its excretion and the most important rout is via the bile. Failure of copper excretion in the bile leading to its accumulation in the body creates Wilsons disease.

Great scientists of Ayurveda have noted the medicinal effect, side effect and contraindications, and accumulation in the body of various metals and minerals. Copper is being used as medicine in its BHASMA form in Ayurveda since more than 1000 years. The hazardous effects of accumulated copper are keenly observed by ancient Ayurveda scientists. So they also mentioned the remedy for such accumulated copper in the body. We have tried such remedy on Wilsons disease and found it very effective.
